Lobbying Policy

The Rémy Cointreau Group does not authorize the financing of political activities and prohibits political involvement of any kind on the group's behalf.

However, as a key actor in the spirits industry, we are engaged in lobbying activities in countries where we operate.

A lobbying activity is any oral or written communication with a public official with the aim of informing and/or influencing a decision to be made. This definition may vary depending on the rules applicable in each jurisdiction.

For example, the situations described below are regarded as lobbying activities:

- Making contact with a member of Parliament or a government employee to discuss and attempt to influence the passing, adoption or introduction of a standard, an act or a regulation;
- Making contact with a committee responsible for defining rules or tariffs.

Within Rémy Cointreau, lobbying activities are carried out through federations or organizations that represent the Group's business sector and by the Group's Public Affairs Department. We employ full-time professionals or external consultants to work on lobbying activities among our different geographical zones where we operate our business.

Our lobbying activities are conducted in line with our sustainable development and corporate social responsibility and ethics policies. As such, lobbying activities are carried out in accordance with i) local laws and regulations in force, ii) the general principles defined in our Lobbying policy and iii) our Code of Conduct which includes rules prohibiting in particular any attempt to bribe public officials.
